Kaizer is our first Rhodesian Ridgeback and he joined us in april 2005. He's a very pleasant fellow - something he's always been. Just social and happy enough - a dog with a twinkle in his eye. Kaizer loves to tease and play around - especially if he doesn't get the attention he wants when he wants it. But with that kind of impishness it's hard not to smile. When he's at home he's calm but he'll make himself heard and seen if there are strangers approaching. In other words: a superb guard dog but who'll calm down immediately if the "stranger" is someone we know.

He's very sensitive to his environment and is able to distinguish people from people, if you get what i mean. When we take him for a walk he's very curious and loves to run and play hide and seek - the more we have to search, the funner it is.

Normally he goes with daddy to work, something he's done since we got him and something he seems to enjoy immensely. We expose him regularly ever since "puppy-hood" and he receives much praise from both judges and other Rhodesian Ridgeback connoisseurs. This is a dog you have no problem approaching to say hello - a very charming and pleasant RR. K and i have followed many courses - both theoretical and practical. Within the near future we're doing a tracking test so he can pass the aptitude test.

Kaizer isn't a spoiled dog; he just gets what he deserves - OUR GIANT GENTLEMAN Ridgebow's Kaizer of Wasco

Since he joined us, much has changed, like the following:

Our own condition
Big mutual interest for rr
Loads of new friends
Experiencing many new places in s and d i didn't know existed
There's always a taken place in the couch
Mother has a new sunbathing buddy
Father always has his work buddy along
We feel safer in our home
Someone's always happy even if i've only been putting out the trash
A lot of pride
Time goes fast - but that's what it does when you're happy!
